THE BENEFIT OF LOW RATES.

The through traffic war which has made its first appearance on the Coast demonstrates the fact that people will travel if fares come within the reach of their means.

The long and well-filled trains going Eastward, should teach railroad managers that it is better to carry many passengers at a limited margin of profit, than to carry a few aggregating the same gain.

What the Coast most needs is an increased population of energetic men and women to take up and develop her resources. To-day the great area west of the Rocky Mountains has a population not equal to half of that of Ohio, Indiana or Illinois.

Many broad acres are waiting for the plow. The topography of our country is such that the products of every climate can be cultivated. Wheat, corn, barley, fruits, cotton, rice &c., can be raised here and there successfully and profitably.

The citizens of the country and towns and cities East have a burning desire to see the West. Heretofore the expense of travel kept them from coming hither. Many will take advantage of the present cut in rates, and not only desirable citizens but new industries will be added to the producing element.

The railroads should try the experiment of trading for the future for a time at least. Should they do this, they will soon learn that it is not the true theory to trade on peoples' necessities. They will abandon the plan of how much will the traffic bear. They will find there is more money in working to develop the agricultural, commercial and manufacturing interests, and special local trade, thus making business, than there is in discriminating in favor of this or against that locality.

All great reforms have followed in the wakes of war. Battles have developed not only new ideas, but unlooked-for leaders. Out of this contest between the great rival lines, we may expect certain revolutions that will point toward the more closely linking the East and West—toward the most rapid development of all business, by an influx from the East of those who will be attracted hither not only by the cheap transportation, but by peculiar advantages which our comparatively undeveloped region affords, and once here will remain.

The Old Ticket.

New York, Feb. 25th.—General James A. Hall, of Maine, speaking of Blaine, said to a Tribune reporter yesterday: "He is in excellent health. He has his second volume off his hands, and now has time for something else. For the present he is looking over his old letters that have accumulated during thirty years of public life."

"What are the Republicans going to do in 1896?"

The old ticket is the thing. Nominate Blaine and Logan and then there will be no need of brass bands or speeches or parades or fireworks, or even of committees. They will walk into the national capital almost without opposition. Even Harpers Weekly would support them. I do believe there is no other man than Blaine who can be elected. Sherman and Logan both have friends who favor them for President, but Blaine is matchless in strength."

The sporting world has a great deal of difficulty in determining just now who is the champion ink slinger, Sullivan or Ryan. Both seem anxious to fight—on paper—both are wasting considerable ink and inflicting terrific punishment on American English, but neither seem in a hurry to meet the other. Each has declared his conditions, with an accompanying oath, that he will not depart therefrom, and so long as they remain a thousand miles apart it is likely that they will continue the exhilarating pastime of whipping pencils from their pockets, inditing letters and licking postage stamps.

PREPARING FOR 1896.

Gossip About Possible Presidential Candidates.—Bureaus said to have been Already Organized at Washington.

A Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette writes: A certain famous gentleman, who has a national reputation as a political manager, and who has conducted State and national campaigns, talked with me as follows last evening:

"The Presidential work is already in full progress, and active efforts are being put forth. I know that three bureaus at least are hard at it, and these are the bureaus of Hill, Logan and Blaine. These three gentlemen have their canvassers out in all directions, actively at work. Logan has a headquarters and manager in Chicago, and another in Springfield. Joe Manley came over here a couple of weeks ago, and established headquarters here and also in New York. A man is here under pretense of another business to look out for Mr. Blaine, and is in constant communication with Blaine and agents in various States. I know of two Congressmen he has made arrangements with and pledged to Blaine who were not for him in 1884. Hill has two men here who are established at a hotel, but they have a private office, a clerk and stenographer, and do a heap of correspondence. Hill is putting in hard work to win the Indiana men, and believes he can get the entire delegations from that State and New York.

"There is a prospect that Cleveland will be the nominee of a third party, composed of Civil Service Reform Democrats and Mugwumps, the officeholders and their friends.

"If Blaine is renominated the Mugwumps will make that the excuse for keeping out of the regular Republican organization and adhering to Cleveland, and following him in a third party.

"The Mugwumps do not want to go clean over into the Democratic organization, but they are tied up to Cleveland. They think they made him and they want any excuse to follow him. They want to take him still more completely to themselves and rule and possess the organization that nominates him in 1896. They would rather see Blaine nominated than not, for then they can fall down before their god openly and feel themselves vindicated. They will demand that the Republicans nominate Edmunds to secure the Mugwump vote. If this is not done they will go on with the programme. I was told that they might agree to support Sherman if nominated; indeed, if that occurred it would be hard to hold the organization of these most exemplary people together. But, as I said, I do not believe they want the Republicans to nominate either Edmunds or Sherman, for they want to stick to Cleveland.

"I don't see just what combinations or elements Gen. Logan can control sufficient to nominate him. He had tight work for his Senatorship the last time, though for that matter, Sherman was not much better off. I heard that Frank Hutton had gone into the Logan canvass, and would help manage it and bring it all the Arthur strength. He was on to New York a little while ago, and had long interviews with Arthur, Conkling and others. I heard, on the other hand, here in Washington that this report was untrue, and that Hutton would be more liable to support Sherman or Evarts.

"George Gorham, who is as good as a mouth-piece for Conkling, for he is in his full confidence, told me he believed Conkling would give his influence to Sherman sooner than to any possible candidate, though he was personally very friendly to Logan, and has been ever since the famous 306 fight in 1880. Conkling believes Sherman to be the greatest man now in public life. I have heard that negotiations have been opened or proposed looking to an alliance between Evarts and Foraker for the ticket in 1896. Foraker is generally looked upon as the most promising political timber in the country, and if he can be re-elected and carry his State handsomely he will probably be in a condition to decline to negotiate for the second place and aspire to the first. I believe if his own case becomes helpless Mr. Blaine would give his influence to such a ticket as Sherman and Reed.

"I think that would be the winning ticket were the Republicans able to win at all. If they can't win with that ticket, then they can't win with any. While Sherman is the ablest Republican to-day, Reed is the most brilliant, and both are clean and honest. I have heard Long spoken of as a second to Sherman; but Long is a dodo. I would about as soon think of William Walter Phelps for such a place. One parts his hair in the middle and the other bangs his. The voting populace of this country is not up to enter style yet. Reed has all the simple, honest, awkward ways of a backwoodsman, but his wit is as brilliant as his good nature is inexhaustible. He is as thoroughly a man of the people as Sherman is a man of the statesmen. I heard in Joe Manley's room in the Ebbitt House a remark made to the effect that if Blaine were nominated McKinley would be given second place.

"There is one big scheme going on that people have not discovered yet. It is the candidacy of Whitney. I know it to be a fact, and it is being worked with every one of the powerful influences he can command."

A CONTRACTED CURRENCY.

The Treasurer of the United States, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Treasury, states that coin money in the country to-day amounts to about eight hundred millions of dollars, in round numbers. The earnest desire of the Treasurer, which he strongly recommends to the Secretary of the Treasury, meeting in this respect the Secretary's cordial endorsement, is to retire the Treasury notes, suspend the coinage of silver and leave the country with only the national banks notes and the coin. Let us see what would be the effect of the action.

Putting the amount of national bank notes in circulation at four hundred millions of dollars, we have at present about fifteen hundred millions of money inclusive of the paper and coin in the Treasury. The amount withdrawn from circulation is the amount of gold in the Treasury reserve some two hundred millions, and probably as much more in the banks. Withdrawing the greenbacks, therefore, would leave us with half our present currency, or, in other words, contraction to it at least one-half. As suspension of silver coinage would deprive us of the great relief of twenty-millions of dollars annually we now get from that source, the consequence would be frightful. The terrible times and distress of 1873-4 would be repeated on a grander scale. As the volume of currency is contracted prices contract; wheat would go down to thirty and forty cents cents per bushel; labor to one-half its present prices; mortgages, debts, bonds, fixed salaries, etc., would be doubled; that is, it would take twice as much of the products of labor to pay for them. The working people would be reduced to the condition of the Mexican peons, and a bloody revolution alone settle the matter.

Discussing this state of affairs, the Chicago Sentinel pertinently says: "Are the people ready for any such scheme? Are they ready for universal bankruptcy?"—Washington Sunday Gazette.

ADOLPH SUTRO.

The Eureka Sentinel kindly remarks: Probably there is no millionaire who made his wealth out of Nevada properties doing as much for the common good to-day on the Pacific Coast as Adolph Sutro, of tunnel fame. He is establishing in San Francisco a large public library of rare and valuable books. The grounds about the Cliff House, the greater portion of which are known as the "Sutro Heights," have been transformed at great expense from almost a barren tract to one of the most beautiful parks in America. This at his death, it is said, will become public property. In a way it is so now, inasmuch as all who desire can, without cost or special permission, visit the grounds to his or her heart's content. While Mr. Sutro has, apparently, no object in view in making this and other improvements in that section of the Bay city that will result in increasing his wealth, he has on his pay-roll upwards of 60 men, all of whom are employed at his own personal expense. This is certainly something to be appreciated in a city the size of San Francisco, where over 20,000 able-bodied men are unable to find employment. Then, too, his charities are numerous. We trust the philanthropist will remember in the dispensation of his wealth some of our Nevada institutions that are worthy and in need of practical assistance.

A LONG FEUD.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: Some New York smartys gives out that Messrs. Mackay and Fair have reconciled their difference. He is badly mistaken. There are quarrels that may be healed, but not this one. It involves on one side at least a wound which can only come when a high spirited man, more proud of his good name than his life, feels that his honor has been attacked in a way that cannot be resented without involving others who are in no position to defend themselves. We do not think that quarrel will ever be patched up in this world, and if beyond the grave the disembodied dwellers know of what happened them on earth, that one quarrel will last ten million of years in the chancery courts of eternity.

POLITICAL MONGOLIANS.—The Carson papers are deliberately making mention of the Chinese question as having some possible connection with the coming political campaign. Most assuredly that cannot be the case. The gentlemen who have made themselves prominent in this matter have been influenced by purely patriotic motives and are unselfishly looking to the good of the community and the country. The fact will be explicitly proven by not one of them coming out for office this Fall. Should any of them do so, then will be time enough to cast the foul Mongolian aspersions upon their political character, and with good reason therefor. Not one of the leaders in either Reno or Carson has any political aspirations or any political fish to fry in the matter, therefore even the insinuation is a dirty one and will not be tolerated. Just wait and see. Slander no honest man, but, by all means, copper the mercenary loaf and fish grasping demagogue. Such are worse than Chinamen.—Enterprise.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

Carson Index, Feb. 26th.

As the Spring opens there is naturally considerable speculation abroad as to the impending political campaign. The prevalent impression among Republicans is that there is no good reason why this State should not be carried by a heavy majority for the State ticket. Mistakes can be made of course, and an easy flight easily lost. But under fair circumstances the people are ready this year to maintain the political complexion which in the main has been characteristic of the State since its admission into the Union. It is naturally Republican, but its voters are capable of making remarkable discriminations in their verdicts at the polls. What is wanted by all is the nomination of strong and popular men, who reflect the action and views of the general people. There is an unusual degree of self assertion among the voters and the demand is that their wishes shall be consulted in every move from the initiative to the close of the campaign.

The Republican party has now its opportunity to go into the field as the representative of the people. This opportunity should not be frittered away by the selfishness or improper methods of the few. The masses of the Republican party are too thoroughly acquainted with the great events and principles which called it into being, ever to consent willingly that it shall become a mere engine for the furtherance of private schemes. The party is the property of the people and they propose to make it the vehicle of their own will.

It is too early to enter upon the matter of designating their particular men who are to lead the party to victory next November. The State has many citizens who would make a creditable showing in any position which is within the gift of the people. The principal task is to place them upon the ticket in such a manner as will not handicap them in the race. Many a man and nominee who is individually worthy of political promotion at the hands of the people is nevertheless liable to receive the punishment and defeat which can in no other method be meted out by a resentful public against unwise and selfish managers. It is not enough merely to nominate good men for office. The world contains many good men. A political nomination demands that the political as well as the personal wishes of the people is to be subserved.

In this way the masses are encouraged, are content, and enter into the spirit of a campaign with that enthusiasm which is the highest manifestation of happiness under republican government and free institutions. As the result of a general and free participation of the rank and file in the preliminary steps there will be a complete ascendancy at the polls next Fall for the Republican party. Our State has every reason to be dissatisfied with the Democratic Administration at Washington, and its only hope is in the direction of an early overthrow of a political domination which has attacked every leading interest upon which our future prosperity depends.

She Shocked the Divine.

Edmira Gazette.

A prominent divine was the invited guest of Mr. B. and family. Miss Alice, the charming daughter of the host, was gracing the festivity, and said impulsively:

"Oh, mother, I've been roasting up in my room all afternoon. It's hotter than—"

"Alice," said the father, sternly.

"I say it's hotter than—"

"Alice," said her mother excitedly, and the divine looked at her in alarm.

"I say it's hotter than I ever saw before," continued the young lady coolly, "and I just sat there without a thing on—"

"Oh, Alice!" said her father in alarm. This time the divine was thoroughly frightened.

"I just sat there without a thing on—"

"Oh, Alice!" said the mother almost crying.

"I say I just sat there," continued the girl, not noticing the interruption, "I just sat there without a thing on except my very lightest Summer clothing, and read my Bible all the afternoon. Will you have some more soup, doctor?"

The Carson Index of Thursday says: Assemblyman Turritt of Humboldt county was in Carson yesterday on his way to San Francisco, whither he went last evening. He brings cheerful accounts from the "Great East," and says that Hon. John H. Kinkead is the first choice of Humboldt for the next Governorship.

The Times-Review says: We understand that Judge Mesick will argue the new Judiciary law case in the Supreme Court in behalf of the people. He is one of the ablest lawyers on the Coast, and no better selection could have been made by the opponents of the statute to be contested.

The Democrats are making preparations to sweep everything before them at the election to be held in this State next Fall.—Pioche Record.

A MINING ROMANCE.

How Fortunes are Suddenly Accumulated.

From the Sierra Tribune.

The readers of the Tribune know how rich the Young America mine is, where it is located, who are the owners, and so forth, but many of them do not know the story of its discovery and development, which, if written in detail, would exceed in interest any modern romantic novel!

Two years ago Oliver Sunderhaus and Watt Hughes, young men who had for years worked in this section for miners' wages, concluded that they would prospect a little on their own responsibility and see if they could not discover a quartz ledge which would yield them a more profitable income than the average wage-worker is compensated with for his dull and monotonous labor. The agreement was that whatever was "struck" by either should be equally divided between the two. Possessed of a few tools and plenty of energy and perseverance, they started out, going from ridge to ridge, and canyon to canyon, digging into the earth wherever they thought there was a possibility that the coveted treasure might be hidden. Failure upon failure to discover the prize did not daunt their hopes or determination, and on they tramped day after day over mountain and gorge. But one day their faith in the old saying, persevere and you'll succeed, was happily confirmed when they were rewarded by Sunderhaus finding the now famous Young America quartz ledge. Well, to make a long story short, they finally interested A. C. Busch and P. Deidesheimer in their discovery, giving these gentlemen a quarter interest each, Sunderhaus and Hughes retaining the other half. The company then incorporated with a capital stock of 500,000 shares, putting 100,000 shares on the market, the proceeds of which were devoted to opening up the mine. When the stock was first put on the market, and selling at a comparatively nominal figure, ex-Sheriff Mead came into possession of some 25,000 or 30,000 shares. The mine is now paying handsome dividends. Messrs. Hughes and Sunderhaus to-day have a fortune of about $300,000 each; Mr. Busch who before counted his wealth by the tens of thousands now counts it by the hundreds of thousands; Mr. Deidesheimer, who was a comparatively poor man, does likewise; Mr. Mead, whom Dame Fortune had for some time previously treated with anything but favor, is now said to possess from $75,000 to $100,000.

R. L. Fulton, of the Reno Gazette, was in Sacramento Wednesday. He told a Bee reporter that Reno has had a prosperous Winter, and is growing in importance as a trading point.

Dr. J. H. Roe, the President of the Dredging Co., was in Reno yesterday. He is studying up on Reduction Works. He says there is no trouble about building them if sufficient ore can be produced to keep them running.

The weather changed suddenly yesterday afternoon, and for a few minutes it looked as though there would be a big snow storm. A few flakes fell, the wind blew steady and strong, but in a short time the condition could be reported "clear and cold."

The daily ore shipments over the V. & T. railroad now aggregate 120 cars, carrying 8 tons each, footing up a total of 960 tons. The daily shipments from the Con. Cal. & Va. average over 400 tons. Of this amount 120 tons are taken out from between the 1750 and 1800 levels through the C. & C. shaft and 280 from above the 1550 level, through the old Con. Virginia shaft, in the ground formerly worked under the Jones lease. From the Yellow Jacket 14 car-loads of ore (144 tons) are shipped daily to the Brunswick mill. From the Crown Point and Belcher the daily shipments average 42 cars or 336 tons. From the Overman the daily shipments average 7 car-loads or 56 tons. The daily output from the Kentucky averages 70 tons, and from the St. John, Monte Cristo and numerous mines in Six-mile Canyon and Flowsy, the average daily ore yield is about 50 tons, making a total daily ore yield of 1,050 tons from the mines in Storey county.

LEWIS DISTRICT.—The Battle Mountain Central Nevada says:

E. T. George, superintendent of the Eagle Mining Company is putting the Highland Chief mill in shape to start up soon and he expects to make a short run on Eagle ore and will also work a quantity of custom rock for some of the mines in that district. This will work a great benefit to the district and no doubt the reverberating of the stamps in the "big mill" will be the most musical sound that has been heard in Lewis for several years. Much credit is due Mr. George for his management of the Eagle property since his accession to the superintendency and it shows very clearly that practical miners at the head of affairs in the mines throughout the State would make many of them bullion producing and dividend paying properties instead of leering assessments to keep up high-priced officials who have no practical knowledge of mining.

GRAY'S MENTAL CONDITION.—The Silver State, of Wednesday, has this: "Dr. Dawson, of Reno, and Dr. Hanson, of this place, engaged by J. H. MacMillan, of counsel for Clarence Gray, to give their opinion of Gray's mental condition, began their investigation yesterday afternoon. They questioned Sheriff Fellows and C. C. Patner and Henry Nofsinger, his deputies, and also the prisoners in the county jail relative to Gray. It is understood that the medical men will also examine Gray and study his idiosyncrasies. The inquiry has no legal effect, but if the doctors decide that Gray is insane Sheriff Fellows will summon a jury to pass upon the matter."

A RAILROAD RUMOR.—The Silver State says: "It is reported that in consequence of the dissolution of the Transcontinental pool, the time over the C. P. R. R. and U. P. R. R. will be shortened, and that passenger trains will be run from San Francisco to Omaha in twelve or fifteen hours less time than at present. The breaking up of the pool leaves all Pacific roads at liberty to regulate their own rates and running time, and the Central and Union Pacific expect to increase their passenger business by shortening the running time. The Atlantic and Pacific and Northern Pacific are competing with the Central route for the passenger traffic."

SHIPPING FURNACE SLAG.—The Silver State says: E. C. Reed and A. H. Washburn, of San Francisco, have purchased the slag pile at the old Oreaon smelting works, and have commenced shipping it to California. The pile accumulated in early days before the advent of the railroad, when ores from the Montezuma mine in Arabia district were smelted at the works. There are thousands of tons of the slag, which it seems will pay to ship to California.

The late dividend declared by the Paradise Valley company is the first since their mill was burned, over a year ago. They built new reduction works, however, and have run several hundred feet of tunnels to strike the Wild Goose and Paradise mines at a greater depth without levying any assessments, which, considering the heavy discount on silver, is doing tolerably well.

CHANGED HANDS.—The sale of John G. Fox's store property at Carson took place yesterday morning and Dr. S. L. Lee became the purchaser. Ben. Edson has been employed by the doctor as his agent to conduct the stationery business.

Doc. Simms, of Dayton, died at the Hot Springs on Monday last. His remains will be brought to Dayton and interred by the I. O. O. F.

Charles Denby, United States Minister to China, has sent some interesting dispatches to Mr. Bayard, which deal with two questions of vital import to the development and safety of the Empire. The first is the construction of railroads, which Li Hung Chang is urging with all his vigor. The other is the building of a navy, to replace the useless junks which at present fly the Imperial flag, and to organize a system of coast defenses adequate to protect the harbors and shores of the country. Mr. Denby says there is every reason to believe that Chang will succeed in his plan of constructing railroads, notwithstanding the powerful opposition. He had a complete model of an American railroad constructed and exhibited to the Emperor and high officials, who were greatly pleased. It was the first and most complete representation they had ever seen of the much-talked-of railroad, and it enabled them to realize many of the benefits this modern institution would confer on China.

SHOULDN'T RESIGN.—A Western Nevada exchange says that Sarah Winnemucca and the fisherman Sherman, have brought charges against Indian Agent Gibson, accusing him of drunkenness, gambling and general misbehavior, and an Interior Department officer is investigating the matter. Our exchange further says that although the charges are groundless, the old man is thinking of resigning rather than to be annoyed by the malicious machination of his enemies. We hope he will do nothing of the kind. No one who knows Bill Gibson will believe aught detrimental to his honesty or general character, and he should by all means await the result of the investigation before resigning, as the act might be misconstrued by people who are not acquainted with him.—Times-Review.
